

CHAPTER VI

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

Based on the research findings and discussion in the previous chapters of this research, the writer makes the conclusions and suggestions to the readers concerning with the topic discussed.

6.1 Conclusions

The objectives of this study are to find out types and to describe pattern of parallelism found in Aljazeera News posted in September 2013. Then to completing this research of parallelism, the writer conclude that:

1. From all the text news found in Aljazeera News posted in September 2013, there are 115 types of parallelism. They are; repetitive=76, antithetical= 32, synonymous= 3, and the last synthetic= 2.
2. From the news of Aljazeera News posted in September 2013, the writer concludes that there are 89 sentences, which have their own patterns. They are; (Noun + Conjunction + Noun)= 21, (Phrase + Conjunction + Phrase)= 19, (Clause + Conjunction + Clause)= 20, (Verb + Conjunction + Verb)=23, (Adjective + Conjunction + Adjective)= 4, (Infinitive + Conjunction + Infinitive)= 2.

Based on the result above, the writer conclude that the dominant types of parallelism found in Aljazeera News posted in September 2013 is repetitive. In here, this types is easy to be found because just know repetition of word, phrase or clause, but it must be balanced. So, the readers understand the balancing of sentence itself. And the most of pattern of parallelism that are found in the program news of Aljazeera News posted in September 2013 is verb.

6.2 Suggestions

Allowing the result of this research, the writer would like to give informations as follows:

1. The lecturers

This research can help the lecturers because parallelism is important to teach in writing class with aim to make the process of teaching and learning more conductive. The English teacher should give knowledge about parallelism to their students because in the process of teaching and learning in the class they must be knowing good structure in the text. So, the students will get the right and clear information if the teacher using parallelism in explaining or talking with them.

2. The students

This research can help the students get information about the way to analyze parallelism in the sentence. If the students are found the text news or other text, the first thing should pay attention when the students must comprehend to make good structure of sentence itself.

3. For the further researchers

This research can help the further researchers to improve their knowledge in analyzing the written text, especially in analyzing news. They should give more attention and careful in analyzing and use some sources to get good analysis. Moreover, they can also use this research as one of their references.

