FOREWORD

Assalamualaikum Wr. Wb.

The Conference on Applied Linguistics (CONAPLIN) is intended to be a medium for the observers and interested people in the field of language studies and its application to exchange thoughts and information regarding the recent research and development in the fields of linguistics and applied linguistics. CONAPLIN is also expected to be the medium through which undergraduate and graduate students, teachers, and educators gather and share their experiences and best practices derived from school settings.

As the name suggests, CONAPLIN is dedicated to not only accommodate linguistics and its application in the field of language learning, but also other fields, such as clinical psychology, health, law, communication, translation, literature, and other relevant fields. The studied language can be varied, such as English, Indonesian, Japanese, Arabic, German, French, Sundanese, Javanese, and other local languages in the archipelago. Based on these considerations, the official languages to be used in CONAPLIN are English and Indonesian.

CONAPLIN has been greatly welcomed by both Indonesian and international participants as proven by our success in holding the fifth conference. The number of presenters and participants has been continually increasing since CONAPLIN I. The abstracts received by the committee for the current conference, CONAPLIN V, were as many as 202 abstracts from both domestic and international presenter candidates. Unfortunately, due to time constraints and other limitations, we could only accommodate less than a half of the number of abstracts received.

The theme for CONAPLIN V is "Language Teacher Development in a Globalized World". The papers presented in this proceeding have undergone careful reviews from a board of trusted reviewers and experts in their relevant fields. It is, thus, my great pleasure to present you the proceeding of CONAPLIN V.

Hopefully, CONAPLIN can continuously contribute significantly to the development of language studies and the respective fields.

Wassalam,

Head of the Language Center of UPI

Dr. Wachyu Sundayana, M.A.
